Kew Gardens

Issue 88 Autumn 2021

The beautiful image of a silvereye on the front cover of the autumn 2021 issue looks a bit like an impressionist painting. But it's actually a photo taken by talented Patricia Smith, member of Kulnura & District Garden Club, that won an award in the 2020 Annual GCA Photo Competition.

The competition results are outlined in this issue. Congratulations to all the entrants and winners and special thanks to Patricia.

In this issue you'll also read about:

- Peta Trahar's fascination with toad lilies.
- Glenice's easy-grow plant of the moment.
- Beautiful historic Valleyfield in Tasmania.
- Holly Kerr Forsyth's visit to the Japanese Moss Garden.
- Christine's autumn garden.
- Lisgar Gardens – a Camellia Garden of Significance.
- Gardening without a garden.
- Our bromeliad-loving winner of the GCA Young Gardener of the Year Award.

Plus, there are tips for making compost, a new method for controlling wandering trad, growing gardens in bathtubs, Easy Care Gardening and tales from an Aussie working at Kew Gardens. You'll meet your new GCA Committee and visit President Lorraine's inspiring balcony garden.
