Issue 90 Spring 2021

The award-winning image of the blue banded bee on our front cover was taken by keen horticulturist and photographer Faye Arcaro from Western Australia. We love the bee's choice of the unloved lantana as a favoured food plant. Thanks Faye!

And, because November 6-14 this year is Pollinator Week, inside this issue we have Georgina's informative article about some of the best plants for attracting pollinators to your garden.

You'll also read about:

- The historic Albury Botanic Gardens
- True gardeners' stories from north coast NSW and Queensland's Scenic Rim
- How Edna Walling left her mark on Buderim
- Peta Trahar's Tasmanian angel plant.
- Native stars of the garden
- Maintaining memorial gardens.
- Paul Sorensen's legacy – Everglades
- Roses making memories.
- Gardens reflect our cultural heritage.
- How garden clubs helped re-plant bushfire-ravaged communities.

In this issue we also have a chance for new subscribers to win a beautiful book. And you can now subscribe for a paperless digital subscription. Details in the mag or subscriptions@gardenclubs.org.au.

Plus: don't forget to join in celebrating

National Gardening Week

10-16 October 2021.
